Product Description

The F-4 Phantom II is a supersonic multi-role fighter that has been in service with the US Air Force since the 1960s. It was developed by McDonnell Aircraft and used in interceptor, bomber and reconnaissance missions, including during the Vietnam War. It reached speeds of over Mach 2 and was equipped with a wide range of weapons. At the USS Midway aircraft carrier museum in San Diego, Phantom II is one of the most important exhibits. Visitors can see it up close and learn more about its role in the history of military aviation. With 703 COBI building blocks, you can assemble the legendary F-4 Phantom II aircraft in units from the aircraft carrier USS Midway, which can be visited in San Diego (USA). The licensed set has been built according to the plans of the F-4 aircraft with the greatest attention to brick detail. The aircraft features characteristic decals, movable ailerons and removable landing gear and armament. The cabin can be opened and symbolic mini pilot figures can be placed inside.
